

Ali Rıza Tuna is an independent researcher and textile collector in various aspects of early Anatolian carpets. His research focus is aesthetics and design development of Turkish carpets in the 13th-16th centuries as well as the study of Anatolian kilim and other weavings. He has given many talks and presented articles in several international conferences and seminars.